

INSTITUTE OF AFRICAN STUDIES

HISTORY WATCH

THE INSTITUTE OF AFRICAN STUDIES AND HISTORY WATCH PROJECT

PRESENTS

“Research, Repression, and Freedom: A conversation with David Austin”

Hosted by CBC’s Adrian Harewood

Tuesday, February 2, at 7:30pm
433 Paterson Hall, Carleton University

Drawing on his award-winning book, Fear of a Black Nation: Race, Sex, and Security in Sixties Montreal as a point of departure, this wide-ranging conversation will touch a number of subjects related to politics, race, security, prisons, incarceration and human freedom. The conversation will be facilitated by CBC’s Adrian Harewood.

About David Austin: David Austin is the author Fear of a Black Nation: Race, Sex, and Security in Sixties Montreal, winner of the 2014 Casa de las Americas Prize for literature in English or Creole. He is also the editor of You Don’t Play with Revolution: The Montreal Lectures of C.L.R. James, and has produced radio documentaries on the life and work of Frantz Fanon and C.L.R. James for CBC’s flagship program, Ideas. He currently teaches in the Humanities, Philosophy and Religion Department at John Abbott College.

RSVP: <https://blackhistorymonth2016.eventbrite.ca>

BLACK HISTORY MONTH EVENT

(<http://www.carleton.ca/africanstudies/>)

For more information, please contact the Dr. Audra Diptee at

AudraDiptee@Cunet.Carleton.Ca